Not illustrated. 1870 Excerpt: .an attempt is made to teach the child to recognize in print those words whose meaning and use he has previously learned in conversation, without any regard to the characters or letters of which they are composed. Its advocates argue that as children learn the concrete before the abstract, the whole before its parts, the printed words should be learned before the letters which make them up. That things, actions, qualities, etc., in the material world are, to some extent, so learned is not denied; but with regard to the words that represent them, we think the case is quite different. Even spoken words are learned principally in elementary parts. The child begins to talk by imperfectly lisping the simplest sounds and most elementary words of the language. Perhaps the child first learns to utter the Italian a, because this is the element most naturally produced...
